

John Towers
Head
Homefield School

John has nearly 30 years of experience in the education sector following degrees in History and in Mathematics Education. He has been a Head in two schools; leading his first to become one of the 'most improved' in the country and rated 'Outstanding' by Ofsted. John's career has also included a tour as a School Improvement Adviser, for schools in the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea and with responsibility for 'gifted and talented' provision. Following this, as Director of Education for the charity 'Reach to Teach', he established schools and teacher training supporting 20,000 children in rural India. He has a strong interest in developing innovative educational practice and is a Fellow and a Trustee of the Royal Society of the Arts. John is an Institute of Leadership and Management qualified Executive Coach and is engaged with the 'Schools Together' ISC/DFE Programme.

Leading schools' development