Foundation and Alumni Director

West Buckland School Foundation

Amanda Reynolds is Foundation and Alumni Director at West Buckland School Foundation. She was educated at Badminton School, Monkton Combe School and London University.

After University she stayed in London and joined Yorkshire Television as a Publishing Assistant. She then moved into Central Television's Press and PR Office and was fast-tracked into Business Development. When the family moved out of London to Wiltshire, she joined the fundraising arm of the Countryside Alliance. Moving further West to Exmoor, she spent 15 years as Business Manager of a global Agri-Tech business before making the move into schools' development in 2017.

West Buckland School Foundation was founded in 2003 and has supported West Buckland School in the building and equipping of four major facilities on campus. The Foundation also runs a successful annual bursary programme offering fully funded bursaries; enabling children from local schools to benefit from a West Buckland education. The bursary programme is in its tenth year and currently helps the School support sixteen pupils with a free education. At the start of lockdown in March 2020 the Foundation set up an Emergency Fund which has helped almost 70 pupils remain at West Buckland over the last year.

West Buckland is a thriving HMC boarding and day school for 650 boys and girls aged 3-18 situated on a beautiful rural campus between Barnstaple and Exmoor.
