

Matt Mangan

Director of Philanthropy and Acting Director of Fundraising

Birmingham Women's and Children's NHS Foundation Trust

Matt Mangan has over 15 years of major and principal giving experience gained within the higher education and health sectors

Whilst at the University of Birmingham, Matt was a key member of the leadership team that developed and delivered the £193m Circles of Influence Campaign. During his 13 years at the University, Matt developed a number of long-term relationships with HNW individuals and Charitable Trusts and Foundations to secure a range of six, seven and eight figure gifts for scholarships, capital builds and research activity.

Matt joined Birmingham Women's and Children's Hospital Charity as its new Director of Philanthropy in late 2019. His goal is to significantly increase philanthropic income in support of the world-leading research, treatment and care that the hospital provides to children, women and their families from across the Midlands and the UK.
