

Sally-Anne Huang

High Master

St Paul's School

Sally-Anne Huang was educated at Bolton School, and is now delighted to be a member of their governing body. She also has experience of governance of boarding and prep schools. She read Classics and English at Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford, has an MSc in Educational Leadership and Management and, more recently, also completed a Masters degree in Children's Literature, which is a personal passion of hers. Sally-Anne is High Master of St Paul's School, having previously been Headmistress of James Allen's Girls' School, and Kent College, Pembury. In this post she was also chair of the Methodist Independent Schools heads' group for two years. Her previous appointments have included Housemistress at Sevenoaks School, where she taught the International Baccalaureate, and Deputy Head at Roedean. Her professional interests include the importance of cultural diversity within schools and the power of performing arts in pupil experience. Married to Alexis, Sally-Anne has two adult sons and two dogs; her interests include young adult fiction, playing the tenor saxophone and watching rugby.
