

Dr Enya Doyle

Director of Inclusion

Highgate School

Dr Enya Doyle is Director of Inclusion at Highgate School, where she has worked since January 2021 - as Salima Virji's maternity cover and then successor. Complementing what she does at Highgate, Dr Doyle also works as an inclusion consultant in the arts and education. She has a PhD on gender diversity and inclusion in music-making, which reflects her commitment to scrutinising the often subtle and underlying forms of exclusion embedded in organisational systems and culture. She has presented her research in the UK, Australia and the United States. Dr Doyle takes a pragmatic approach to leading what are often perceived to be difficult and uncomfortable conversations and her collaborative, compassionate and creative approach to driving social change has been recognised on local and national levels for over 10 years.

