

Megan Bruns

Deputy Director of Fundraising and Supporter Development

King's College London

As Deputy Director of Fundraising & Supporter Development, Megan Bruns ensures that King's College London's alumni are the warmest and most enthusiastic supporters and are ready and willing to help the university make the world a better place through their work, wisdom, and wealth: from sharing their stories with prospective students, lending their voice and influence on behalf of the university, to financially supporting King's. In addition to alumni engagement, Megan's teams are also responsible for developing innovative tactics to mobilise the King's communities in support of our next fundraising campaign.

Prior to King's, Megan managed national public information campaigns for the UK government at COI and was a fundraiser for Kidscape Children's Charity at the time when Kidscape was National Charity of the Year. She is a proud alumna of St Andrew's University and Whitman College in Walla Walla, Washington (but would be even prouder had she attended King's!).
