

Saira Uppal

Director of Development & External Relations

Dragon School

Saira has spent nearly 20 years in educational fundraising, beginning as a telethon caller at her own Alma Mater, Durham University. Since then, she has been fortunate enough to work alongside, and learn from, exceptional colleagues across a range of world-leading Schools and Universities. She joined the Dragon School as their Director of Development & External Relations 3 years ago, where she leads an exciting fundraising campaign to establish the School's first endowment in support of bursaries, and to help the School realise its ambitious plans for capital projects.
