

Megan Bruns

Director of Development

Latymer Foundation

Megan joined Latymer Foundation in 2023 and is leading the development team to successfully close and celebrate the Inspiring Minds campaign and the Foundation's 400th anniversary in 2024. Prior to Latymer, Megan was the Deputy Director of Fundraising & Supporter Development at King's College London where she managed the alumni engagement, mass fundraising and legacy giving programmes. Before King's, Megan worked in Media & Advertising for the UK government (including London 2012 campaign) and started her career as a fundraiser for Kidscape Children's Charity. To paraphrase Steve Jobs about looking back and connecting the dots, the common thread in Megan's career is building community around a shared purpose.

While not lucky enough to be an alumna of Latymer, Megan did study at Whitman College in Walla Walla Washington (yes, that is an actual place) and St Andrew's University in Scotland studying Sociology and History of Art. The former was only possible thanks to the generosity of alumni donations so Megan knows first hand the difference that philanthropy makes in students' lives.
