

Robin Sharp

Director of Development

Bradford Grammar School

Robin transitioned from working in corporate education to philanthropy in 2000, starting as a Major Gifts Officer at the Madeira School, near Washington DC. She is passionate about philanthropy and all the opportunities that it provides. Robin has held leadership roles at Brasenose College Oxford, Trinity College Cambridge, and in other UK and Australian universities. Robin recently returned to the independent school sector as Director of Development for Bradford Grammar School during their campaign to double their Assisted Places offering.

Robin has always been a bit of a nomad, enjoying taking on new environments, cultures, and challenges. She was educated at the Emma Willard School and Denison University both in the USA while her family resided in the UK and the West Indies. She received a degree in Executive Coaching from George Washington University and continues to use coaching as a leader, manager, and fundraiser to create opportunities for collaboration and success.
