

Oliver Blond

Chief Executive

School Partnerships Alliance

Oliver is currently the Chief Executive of the School Partnerships Alliance, and has led schools in both the state and independent sectors for over seventeen years, as Head of The Henrietta Barnett School, in Barnet, and Head of Roedean School, a day and boarding school in Brighton. He is also the Academic Director and a founding member of the PTI (formerly The Prince's Teaching Institute), an educational charity delivering high quality subject-based professional development to school teachers and leaders across the country, and has been involved in this charity from its inception in 2001. After studying for a joint degree in English Literature and Philosophy, Oliver trained as an English and Drama teacher, and has since held leadership roles across a number of schools before moving onto Headship. He has also worked as a school governor, and consultant on school development, and has made a significant contribution to educational leadership in schools and partnerships in different sectors, including the charity sector, for over 25 years.
