

Scott Crawford

Deputy Head (Education Development)

Magdalen College School

Scott Crawford is Deputy Head (Education Development) at Magdalen College School, Oxford. He read Biological Sciences at the University of Oxford and completed a doctorate in Developmental Biology at the University of York. He began his teaching career at Highgate School where he spent nine years. At Highgate, Scott held pastoral and academic roles and ended his time there as Head of Science. At MCS, Scott leads on teaching and learning, CPD, curriculum development and the school's community partnership and engagement programme.