

David Morton

Headmaster

The King's School, Gloucester

David Morton is Headmaster of The King's School, Gloucester, a leading HMC day school which dates back to 1541. With 25 years' teaching experience in five UK independent schools, David has a broad range of experience in academic, pastoral, marketing, admissions and co-curricular roles. Having joined King's Gloucester in 2017, David has worked tirelessly to support the multiple roles of the development office in a challenging local market. As a proud Headmaster of a school thriving in the current climate, David today shares details of an innovative, recent fund-raising project with us.
