

Susie Carr

Director of Development

Warwick Schools Foundation

Education changes the world, and it is my privilege to spend my working week widening access to educational opportunities for young people from all backgrounds. I bring twenty-five years of experience in the voluntary sector to my role, along with a foundation in PR/Marketing.

During that time, I have raised five, six and seven figure gifts from philanthropists to support large national charities, a selection of smaller local/regional organisations and various educational institutions, using almost every kind of fundraising technique; corporate donations, major gifts, trusts & foundations, legacy giving and regular giving.

I have held various strategic, senior roles, established my own freelance consultancy and supported a range of causes including disadvantaged children & young people, people with disabilities, hospices, healthcare & social welfare.

Today, I lead the Development and Alumni Relations team at Warwick Schools Foundation, where we are building momentum towards the launch of an ambitious bursary fundraising campaign which will bring a step-change to social mobility across Warwickshire and the West Midlands.
